

Editorial Note

The Manitoba Law Journal is pleased to present a volume dedicated almost entirely to Canadian legal history. This is the result of a partnership between the Journal and the Canadian Legal History Project at the University Manitoba. These essays will appear in the Canadian Legal History Project's upcoming book Canada's Legal Inheritances, edited by DeLloyd Guth and Wesley Pue. Dale Gibson and Wes Pue initiated the collection of essays. DeLloyd Guth took over the project in late 1994, and the results of his tireless editorial work appears in these pages.

Also in this issue is Robin Junger's timely comment on Tolofson v. Jensen, the most recent appraisal of conflict of laws by the Supreme Court of Canada. Our upcoming volume will have essays by David Elliot, Felix Semberov, Ghislain Otis, Bruce Feldthusen and reviews by Mitchell McInnis. Following this will be the Manitoba Law Annual and possibly a special issue dedicated to law and its place on the electronic frontier.

Enjoy!
